

President Warns Soviet To Stay Out Of Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Tuesday night endorsed the effort to overthrow Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and told Soviet Premier Khrushchev this country will take action if the Russians interfere militarily in Cuba.

"In the event of any military intervention by outside forces, we will immediately honor our obligations under the Inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression," Kennedy told Khrushchev.

Kennedy pledged anew that the United States will not intervene with force in the battle between Castro's forces and those seeking to overthrow him, but he said Americans do not conceal their admiration for those who wish to see democracy re-established.

"The United States government can take no action to stifle the spirit of liberty," he said.

Kennedy, replying to a note from the Soviet premier, at the same time appealed to Khrushchev not to use the situation in Cuba as a pretext "to inflame other areas of the world."

World's Business

"What your government believes is its own business," the President said. "What it does in the world is the world's business. The great revolution in the history of man, past, present and future, is the revolution of those determined to be free."

Kennedy said it should be no surprise that refugees from that Castro-dominated nation off the U.S. coast have been using whatever means are available to return and "support their countrymen in the continuing struggle for freedom."

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania Tuesday mailed out the first checks to persons qualifying under the temporary extended unemployment compensation program approved by President Kennedy.

"This program will be of real immediate help to the families of more than 57,000 Pennsylvanians who have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits and are still unemployed," Gov. Lawrence said.

More than 200,000 unemployed will eventually draw benefits under the program, he added.

The program permits the jobless to receive an additional nine weeks, or a total of 39 weeks, of unemployment benefits.

HARRISBURG (AP)—The legislators' pay-pension package was approved Tuesday by the House.

The bills would give House and Senate members an immediate $3,000 expense allowance on top of their $6,000 salary and increase their pension benefits 50 per cent.

The vote on the expense allowance, the most controversial part of the six-bill package, was 148-52. The pension increase passed, 161-40.

The entire package now goes to the Senate for further action.

It is estimated that it would cost the state an additional $126,500 annually in pension payments—the legislators would match that amount—and $780,000 for expenses.

Debate Only Expense

There was no debate on any of the measures except the expense account proposal.

Rep. E. J. Farabaugh, Cambria County farmer and Democrat, led the opposition to it, warning the struggle is the only means of achieving their liberties," the President added.

Repeats Declaration

Kennedy repeated his declaration of last week that Americans would not be involved in any military intervention in Cuba.

With that statement, Kennedy rejected Khrushchev's charge that the United States was supporting the invasion by Cuban forces seeking to overthrow Castro.

In his message, Khrushchev also threatened to give the Castro regime "all necessary assistance" in resisting the invasion.

Kennedy called the Castro regime "alien-dominated." He said there are unmistakable signs that Cubans find the denial of democratic liberties and the betrayal of Castro's original revolutionary principles intolerable.

The White House made public Kennedy's message at the same time Secretary of State Dean Rusk handed it to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov at the State Department. Rusk had called Menshikov to his office to receive the reply.

"I have taken careful note of your statement that the events in Cuba might affect peace in all parts of the world," Kennedy said. "I trust that this does not mean that the Soviet government, using the situation in Cuba as a pretext, is planning to inflame other areas of the world."

"I would like to think that your government has too great a sense of responsibility to embark upon any enterprise so dangerous to general peace."

While asserting once again that the United States plans no military action in Cuba, Kennedy said:

Will Honor Obligation

"In the event of any military intervention by outside force we will immediately honor our obligations under the Inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression."

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger earlier had announced plans to call in Menshikov to receive the reply from Kennedy.

Pentagon Confident Of Polaris

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told senators Tuesday that despite several recent test failures the Polaris missile submarine-launched missile.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., noted there have been eight failures out of 19 recent Polaris trials, and asked: "Doesn't that give you some concern?"

"We're very pleased with the performance of the Polaris," the Pentagon chief replied. "We have great confidence it will function satisfactorily—is functioning satisfactorily."

Anti-Climatic

Then came the witnesses, their testimony seeming dull and anticlimactic against the backdrop of Hauser's statement.

Israeli Police Capt. Avner Less testified that Eichmann volunteered to describe his functions under the Nazi regime in a secret interview held in a fortress near Haifa last May 29 shortly after he was brought to Israel, Col. Ephraim Holstetter, deputy chief of the special bureau organized to prepare Israel's case against Eichmann, was present.

Less testified that Eichmann was asked if he understood there was no compulsion being exerted to force him to make a declaration and answered yes.

He testified Eichmann told Holstetter he was "interested and ready to give evidence with regard to his functions in the Third Reich."

Face Expressionless

Eichmann looked directly at Less, his face expressionless. Occasionally, he leaned his head toward the judges' bench.

The first prosecution witness summoned was Israeli Police Inspector Naphtali Bar Shalom. He spoke for more than two hours about technicalities involved in cataloging documents presented in evidence.

The court was half empty by the time Less came to the stand.

There was no debate on any of the measures except the expense account proposal.

Rep. E. J. Farabaugh, Cambria County farmer and Democrat, led the opposition to it, warning the legislators: "I think it's about time the members in both houses start thinking of the people they represent . . . and not thinking simply of financial gains."

Both floor leaders, Democrat Stephen McCann and Republican Albert W. Johnson argued for the measure, basing their justification on the increasing length of the sessions.

Farabaugh took issue with the work involved in being a legislator. He argued furthermore that "we're going to call upon a lot of people to pay more taxes who are not making a good living."

Some legislators sitting beyond Farabaugh made remarks that were inaudible to the press gallery during his speech, but they were directed his way.

Earlier, there were scattered hisses through the chamber when Rep. Maurice H. Goldstein, R-Allegheny, got up to propose an amendment that would have prohibited any legislator from holding any other elective or appointive public office.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson Tuesday night dramatically drew the attention of the U. N. Political Committee to President Kennedy's warning that the United States would act to prevent Soviet military intervention in Cuba.

The chief U. S. delegate read the full text of Kennedy's reply to a note in which Soviet Premier Khrushchev had demanded an end of the fighting in Cuba and pledged "all necessary assistance" to Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Shout 'Hands Off Cuba'

Stone Hurlers Smash U.S. Embassy Panes In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators, hurling stones to a chorus of "Hands off Cuba!" smashed U. S. Embassy windows Tuesday.

Some of the crowd then battled Soviet soldiers and policemen guarding the building. The demonstration was similar to others at times of international crisis in the past, but this one got somewhat out of hand.

All this coincided with a diplomatic offensive by Premier Khrushchev. He urged President Kennedy to act toward halting the invasion of Cuba before the fighting becomes "a conflagration, impossible to cope with."

A Soviet statement also warned that "aggression against Cuba is capable of jeopardizing the peaceful life of the population of the U.S.A. itself."

Embassy personnel estimated 10,000 demonstrators marched past the building in waves during the day. They shouted and plastered signs on the high iron fence in front of the building.

The 1,500 soldiers and several hundred policemen on hand evidently had orders not to permit serious damage to the building.

Of hundreds of panes of glass on the street side of the 10-story embassy, about 25 were broken by flying rocks. The building's yellow stucco facade was splattered with green and purple ink.

In a spectacle rare here, excited Asian and African students turned and attacked the police and soldiers after authorities decided it was time to call a halt and blocked off the embassy area. The students attend Moscow's Friendship University.

With the demonstration out of control, soldiers and policemen got tough.

Tossed In Truck

One young African who attacked a policeman was jumped by five policemen and tossed into the back of a truck. Several other Africans met the same fate.

A policeman grabbed one youth who was hitting a police horse with a briefcase and flung him to the ground.

Embassy personnel watched the demonstration from top-story windows and looked at television, which carried the demonstrations here and elsewhere in the Soviet Union.

The American Roman Catholic priest here, the Rev. Louis Dionne of Worcester, Mass., took color photographs from the sixth-floor apartment of U. S. Marine Col. Leo Dulacki of Omaha, Neb.

This was not the first time Muscovites have marched on the embassy. On July 17, 1958, more than 2,000 stood in the street and shouted protests over the landing of U. S. Marines in Lebanon.

Soviet Tanks, Planes Meet Invaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rebel invasion forces were reported battling against the high odds of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Soviet-supplied tanks and jet planes in central Cuba Tuesday.

The Cuban army radio reported the recapture of Mayari, a town of about 5,000 on the north coast of easternmost Oriente Province, which apparently had been taken by guerrilla infiltrators. The town is on Nipe Bay near the formerly U. S.-owned Mno Bay Mining Co.

The Castro embassy in London admitted a Cuban navy cutter had been sunk in action "against mercenaries."

While rebel strategists nervously awaited hard news on their do-or-die anti-Castro revolution, threats and counterthreats flew between Moscow and Washington.

President Kennedy warned Soviet Premier Khrushchev against intervening on behalf of Castro.

"In the event of any military intervention by outside force, we will immediately honor our obligations under the Inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression," Kennedy said.

Had Promised

Khrushchev earlier had promised all necessary assistance to Castro and in a personal note to Kennedy asked him to call a halt to the invasion.

The President again declared the United States has no intention of taking military action to help the rebels.

While the Communist bloc in the United Nations pressed for action to support Khrushchev's request to Kennedy, Mexico proposed a resolution calling on all countries to bar their territory and resources to promoting "civil war" in Cuba.

From Peking, Red China's Premier Chou En-lai promised "resolutely to support the Cuban people's just struggle."

While Cuban diplomats in several capitals claimed five rebel planes had been shot down and four invaders' ships sunk, the Cuban Revolutionary Council in New York reported its "Freedom Fighters" had been attacked by Castro's Soviet-made tanks and MIGs. The rebels said they had lost large amounts of equipment and medical supplies.

This was on the central front where the rebels apparently made their main thrust from a landing point somewhere in the area of Occidente Bay's swampy shore on the south coast.

20 Miles Inland

A CBS correspondent reported in Miami that there were indications the rebels had penetrated as far as Jaguey Grande, about 20 miles inland from the northern tip of the bay. He said Castro's radio network had attempted in vain to raise the Jaguey Grande station.

The rebel beachhead was reinforced with men and supplies, he added.

Jaguey Grande is about 20 miles south of Colon, the area astride Cuba's main east-west highway which rebel sources reported their forces had penetrated Monday.

Havana broadcasts picked up in Miami suggested that a reign of terror is on.

The execution of eight alleged terrorists at La Cabana fortress was announced. Another announcement said 72 alleged plotters had been turned over to revolutionary tribunals. Among them was Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, Castro's former agriculture minister, who was arrested last December.

House Demo Unit To Probe Redistricting Of Keystone

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pennsylvania's House Democrats chose a three-man committee Tuesday to consider how best to re-district the state's congressional seats.

Population shifts in the last 10 years are costing Pennsylvania three of its 30 seats two years hence, unless Congress increases the House membership to more than 435. And most of the people in politics are not optimistic about that being done.

The committee members are Reps. William J. Green, Philadelphia's Democratic chairman; Elmer Holand, of Pittsburgh; and George M. Rhodes, of Reading.

The committee was named in a meeting with Otis B. Morse, state party chairman, in the office of Rep. Francis Walter, dean of the delegation.

By State Legislature

The actual redistricting is done by the state legislature, but House members, particularly those who think their districts may be changed, or perhaps wiped out, are ready after each 10-year census to submit their own recommendations.

Walter said Tuesday's talk did not deal with any specific suggestions. They will come at a later meeting.

Should Pennsylvania not re-district before the next session of Congress each of the state's representatives in Washington would have to be elected from the state at large.

The state's Republicans named a three-member study committee a while ago. Those serving are Reps. Robert J. Corbett of Pittsburgh, Paul B. Dague, of Downingtown; and John P. Saylor, of Johnstown.

McNamara Speaks At Barrett Twp.

MRS. A. Wright Gibson Jr., conservation chairman, welcomed the students of grades five through eight at an assembly program Monday afternoon in the auditorium of the Barrett Township School.

The program was held for the purpose of presenting prizes to the winners of the recent conservation essay contest sponsored by the Barrett Community Club.

Mrs. Gibson presented the awards to the following: Marlene Doll, Grade 7, first prize, sterling silver bracelet; Maureen Connelly, Grade 7, second prize, sterling silver squirrel pin; Leslie Biles, Grade 7, third prize, silver dollar; John Styk, Grade 7, first prize, sterling silver bracelet; Douglas Shoemith, Grade 7, second prize, sterling silver tie bar; Michael Perry, Grade 8, third prize, silver dollar. Rosemary Garris and Lonnie Gravel, Grade 7, received honorable mention.

Eugene McNamara, District Forester gave a talk on conservation. He noted how much money and time are spent in keeping state parks and land along highways clean.

He said forest fires are one of the biggest problems faced by the Department of Forests and Waters in trying to keep the countryside looking attractive.

Next comes the litter bug. Smokey the Bear has been replaced by Howdy the Raccoon and the name Howdy was chosen because he welcomes people to his home—the forest.

McNamara said a slogan was also chosen from a contest sponsored by the Department of Forests and Waters and was submitted by a girl from Pen Argyl and it is as follows: "I give my pledge as a resident of Pennsylvania to keep the State's lakes and streams pure, its forests and woodlands green, its countryside clean and its wildlife a living picture for others to see."

He also gave some suggestions to follow for good outdoor manners:

Be careful with fire; get permission to enter private land; share facilities in state parks with other people; keep a litter bag in your car; protect and feed the wildlife; protect wild flowers and obey the rules in state parks.

Mass Funeral Held For Seven

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (P)—A mass funeral was held Tuesday for Mrs. Vera Dimeler and six of her children who died in a fire that wrecked their home in nearby Newville last Thursday.

The mother succumbed to serious burns that covered her body on Sunday. The children, ranging in age from 3 to 14, suffocated in the blazing building.

One son, 12-year-old Claude Dimeler, escaped by jumping out a window. He is in a hospital, unaware of the seven deaths.

Three other Dimeler children lived away from home.

The father, summoned from his job, watched helplessly as firemen restrained him from entering the burning house.

'Copter To Be Used To Help Curb Forest Fires In Area

HARRISBURG—Five airplanes and two helicopters will be used this Spring to curb forest fires in Pennsylvania.

Forests and Waters Secretary Dr. Maurice K. Goddard announced this decision yesterday.

Pennsylvania is the first eastern state to use aircraft for water drops on fires in the wilderness before they grow to unmanageable size.

Goddard states that he decided to increase the number of aircraft over the one airplane and one helicopter used last Spring in a pilot project "because of the great success we had in this unusual technique last year."

Five Planes

Planes will be stationed at Hazleton (Luzerne Co.), Phillipsburg (Centre Co.), Ebensburg (Cambria Co.), Conneville (Fayette Co.) and Mt. Pleasant (Schuylkill Co.). Each will be responsible for forest land within 20 miles of its base. In emergencies, they will be shifted to other bases. One helicopter, operated by Helair, Inc., of Lansdale, will be based at Mt. Pocono. Another, owned by Agrotors, of Gettysburg, will be used throughout the state on a variety of missions.

Goddard pointed out that while aircraft had been used for many years for spotting fires, the water drop technique has never been employed in the East before last year.

The airplanes are Stinson biplanes originally used as primary trainers for pilots in World War II. They were later converted for spraying and dusting crops and for insect control. A tank in the forward cockpit enables them to carry from 130 to 180 gallons of water released at from 75 to 100 feet above an incipient fire. An area roughly 200 feet long and 20 to 30 feet wide is covered.

Small Fires

The helicopters, carrying from 35 to 50 gallons of water, are used to fight small fires and to carry men and tools to the scene of action. They can be refilled near the fire.

CAS Celebrates 30th Year; Looks Toward New Service

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY of Monroe County, celebrating its 30th birthday, looked back with Miss Elizabeth Martin to the days before CAS and looked forward to a possible family service in the county with Howard J. Nagel, executive director of Family and Children's Service of Lycoming County.

The annual meeting was held yesterday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel with representatives from many community welfare agencies joining board members. Miss Martin, veteran in the field of probation work, described some of the emergencies in child care and abandonment when she first was named by the court in 1927. Previously many of the county's orphans had been sent to other counties or taken by farmers to help with the work or even placed at the County Home, with no records kept, and no place to turn for help.

At the time the local Children's Aid Society was established with the help of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania, Miss Martin had a caseload of 30 children to turn over to the executive secretary.

The Year's Progress

The past presidents of the organization: Mrs. T. Floyd Rhodes, president for 19 years; Mrs. Frank L. Patterson Jr., Mrs. Jesse Flory, Mrs. Donald Gilpin and Mrs. R. Frederick Jones were honored at the luncheon. Miss Roberta Andrews, of the Pennsylvania CAS, was also a guest.

Charles Jones, executive secretary, reported progress in many fields during the last year when the society has cared for 174 children from 67 families in foster homes, protective care, day care, counseling, adoption and other phases of the work.

The average caseload has been 81 children a month, he said, with the number of children in foster homes rising from 44 to 66; the number of foster homes from 28 to 35.

An important part of this work has been working with the 23 families of the 74 children now placed outside of their own homes in an attempt to rehabilitate those homes.

There has also been a sharp increase in the number of protective cases, Jones said, from one family last April to 11 families with 45 children now on the rolls. During the year, the protective service was used by 25 families with 88 children.

The cases are initiated by complaints from school nurses, probation officers, other agencies or outside persons and involve neglect, exploitation, or abuse of children and involve working with the parents in an attempt to help them deal with their problems and rehabilitate the home. Jones also reported progress in the relationship between the agency and the county commissioners now operating under a contract which provides an open line of communication. He praised the work of numerous committees of board members in policy, personnel, membership, and finance. One of the most active has been the Family Service study group committee, studying standards of service, financial needs, and the practices in such agencies outside of the county.

Family Service Report
"Family service will not provide the answers to all community problems," Howard J. Nagel, executive director of the Family and Children's Service of Lycoming County, warned. "A community needs a rich strong family of agencies including a social service department in the public assistance program, in the schools, in the court system, as well as a family counseling service, all of them with psychiatric counseling and service available to them."

Family service he defined as a process of helping people understand themselves and how to solve for themselves their problems in inter-personal relationships, through an objective third person.

Many of these families need psychiatric help, and not all of them can be helped he warned. "You can't put a person, antagonistic to the world, in one end of family service and have him come out the other a changed person, adjusted to his environment."

However, Family Service can help in specific areas of parent-child relationship; marital relationships; and individual counseling. It can help in providing temporary homemaker service, a substitute mother when the mother is ill or to help the elderly maintain a home. It also works with unwed mothers.

"Do a little dreaming on your own," he advised "and come up with a program which will fit the needs of this community for the next 10 or 20 years rather than blindly trying to adopt a program which has met the needs of another county in the past."

Mrs. William Wells presided at the luncheon which had been arranged by Mrs. Charles Bensinger Jr. At the business meeting, the board accepted the report of the nominating committee given by Mrs. Thomas Knepp when Mrs. Horace G. Butler, Mrs. Jack Harris, Dr. Mary Hunsicker, Dr. LeRoy Koehler, Walter McClelland, Mrs. Frank L. Patterson and Mrs. William Wells were named as directors for 1961-64.

Rohm And Haas Reports Drop

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A sharp drop in profits and sales for the first quarter of 1961 over the same last year was reported by Dr. F. O. Haas, president of Rohm and Haas, at the annual meeting.

Earnings for the period were $4,001,000 or $3.46 a share compared to $5,891,000 or $5.12 a share last year while sales were $31,824,000 compared with $56,280,000.

Now is the time to erect an enduring Memorial, an appropriate expression of love and respect to those near and dear.

Reality 'Snows' In N'fld Area

By PEGGY BANCROFT

NEWFOUNDLAND — Warm, sunny weather. Soft green grass. Bright, sparkling sunshine. Ah! Dreams!

Thirty-three inches of snow. Soggy, muddy roads. Dark, cloudy skies. That's reality!

The Poconos here have enjoyed (?) a total of 33 inches of snow since April 1, which doesn't fool anybody, because Spring is actually here. Temperatures have ranged from 28 to 58. It has rained, snowed, sleeted, snowed, hailed, and snowed.

According to the Pocono-variety weatherman, whose methods of diagnosing the ill-wind that blows are very different from those employed by other weather prognosticators, we have at least one more humdinger in store for us.

How did they arrive at that conclusion? It was simple.

The first snow storm for the winter of 1960-61 came on Oct. 28. That indicated to all but the most obtuse, that there would be 28 snow storms before it was all over for the season.

Snow storm Number 27 came early Tuesday morning. One more to go!

The younger Vogt told reporters he was driving south on the highway when an unidentified northbound car forced him off the road. The car hit the dirt berm out of control and overturned.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,200.

NEW YORK (AP)—F. W. Woolworth Co. spent $495 million on U. S. products for its 2,075-store chain last year. The company said the total was an all time high and was $26 million more than 1959 expenditures. Woolworth bought nearly 40,000 different items in 50 states last year.

South Wayne Plans Public Meet On Jointure Or Union

NEWFOUNDLAND—A public meeting has been scheduled by the Southern Wayne Joint School Board next Tuesday at 8 p.m. to discuss the proposed jointure with Wallenpaupack or formation of Administrative Unit A with Lake, Salem and South Canaan Townships.

The meeting will be a part of the Parent-Teacher Assn. meeting at the school.

Meeting Monday night with Claude Smith, vice president, presiding, the board discussed the two proposals at length. The choice lies between jointure with the present Wallenpaupack Area Jointure, now preparing to build a $1.8 million secondary school on a 30-acre site on Lake Wallenpaupack or either jointure or union of the six townships included in the state-approved Unit A.

The latter move would also entail building a new secondary school at a site somewhere between Newfoundland and Lake Ariel.

State pressure to enlarge the school district has been felt by the Southern Wayne board since 1955. An invitation by the local board to the three other townships in Unit A to form a jointure was recently turned down by Lake Township.

Favors Union
Lake favors a union school district, based on real estate evaluation rather than per pupil cost. Unfair proportionate costs under the union setup were cited by the Southern Wayne Board as its reason for refusing to enter a union district.

However, during the past month the Southern Wayne board has met with Wallenpaupack directors and progress has been made toward a jointure on the east side of Wallenpaupack. During the Monday session, the resignations of Walter C. Kizer, guidance counselor and English instructor, and Mrs. Margaret Moore, school nurse, were accepted by the board.

A budget calling for total expenditures of $162,388 was approved for advertising. The Summer recreation and music programs were also approved.

Cause For Worry

The Republican National Committee's research people have at last determined what happened last November. It wasn't the big turnouts in the big cities that licked them, but flagging support in the suburbs.

Young, conservative and prosperous voters in suburban areas went as heavily Democratic as the city voters, a study of the returns discloses.

The closeness of the vote and increased Republican representation in Congress and state legislatures proved, to the satisfaction of the researchers at least, that the party "has not had a severe defeat." All it lost, it seems, was the White House.

But that suburban vote is something to worry about. It suggests, the report continues, that city Democratic machines have extended their reach or that suburban folk share a "surprising identity of political interests" with their city neighbors.

Giving due weight to the religious factor, the figures still tend to unsettle Republican conviction that when city Democrats move into Republican suburbs they take on the political coloration of their new environment.

Now that it has discovered what everyone else has known all along, the national committee presumably will look for remedies for suburban defection. One thing is sure; it won't find them in "Ev and Charlie."

Free Medicine: How Free?

A letter from an Enquirer reader challenges a recent Enquirer editorial concerning President Kennedy's program for broadening Social Security to include medical care for the nation's aged.

The letter specifically takes us to task for contending that the program as recommended by President Kennedy will be financed by the federal government. Instead, he writes, it will be financed through Social Security, which, in turn, means equal contributions from employer and employee.

It seems to us that denying that the federal government would pay for medical care—even under Social Security—is like denying that the federal government pays for national defense...

The federal government, in reality, is wholly without resources. Whatever it has, whatever it "gives" to the states, to local communities, to individuals, it first—or later—takes from them in the form of taxes. The same is true of Social Security; for the Social Security tax is a tax just as surely as the income tax or excises.

This particular letter, however, results in large measure from a massive public-relations campaign undertaken by the Social Security system and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of which it is a part.

The campaign is aimed at convincing the American people that Social Security is simply a form of insurance with the federal government as the insurance company.

The campaign suggests that medical care would be substantially the same. Contributing to a medical care fund under Social Security, in other words, would be no different from contributing to some privately financed health insurance program. Once you have contributed, the government is in your debt; it owes you certain benefits and dividends when you retire or otherwise establish your eligibility.

But this story is far different from the one the Social Security system tells.

There is, we believe, a substantial distinction between a "right" and a "gift." And that distinction is one Americans should understand.

—Cincinnati Enquirer

More Organizations

Everyday in come announcements of new organizations that are excited about one of another phase of public life. One hears much about the apathy of the American people, but no people is apathetic which has so many organizations to tell its rulers how to rule.

The National Committee For a Representative Congress is a conservative organization whose letterhead bears many distinguished names. In its statement of its purposes, this organization says that it is:

"An independent, non-partisan group of public-spirited citizens neither 'rightists' or 'leftists.' Nationally organized to give recognition, and support where needed, to selected Senators and Congressmen taken not on a basis of their political party or philosophy, but solely on their individual records of outstanding courageous public service."

This resort to individual rather than party support is interpretable as being designed to help favorite candidates with campaign contributions which is no sin. Apparently, those who manage this Committee discovered that some of its members also belong to the John Birch Society and they will have none of it. Robert Austin, Chairman of The National Committee For a Representative Congress, says:

"I am asking any members of The National Committee For a Representative Congress who may have joined the John Birch Society to drop their Society membership or else withdraw from membership in the N.C.R.C."

This is indeed a challenge. It denies a man the right to believe that both these organizations are worthy. It is a form of monolithism which those who do not like the Communist way find so reprehensible, namely, that one man should dictate to another, that membership in an organization includes independence of thought.

Of course, most churches adhere to this position, each maintaining that it has been chosen by God as an instrument for His will. However, when this exclusiveness enters politics, it is somewhat abhorrent.

Austin further says: "We do not down grade the Communist menace in any respect, but we feel it is a proper function of our government to protect us from this danger. We believe the FBI and the two Congressional Committees, The House Un-American Activities Committee and the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee are actively and conscientiously trying to do this..."

Suppose they are, does that preclude citizens from organizing to fight a cause with which they disagree? If the Communists may organize to be Communists, may not the anti-Communists organize for their purpose?

If the FBI and the House and Senate Committees are to do all our thinking, our complaining and protesting, why does such an organization as this one exist? Is it merely to say, Amen, to what the FBI and the two Committees have to say?

I battle for thoughtful, erudite, meaningful conservatism, but when I read such a release as the one from The National Committee For a Representative Congress, I wonder what kind of a country this has become.

According to this Committee's precepts, absolute conformity is essential to good government. Under such a concept, the Lincoln-Douglas Debates would have been outlawed as slanders upon government leaders and such an editor as Horace Greeley would have to be horse-whipped for having views of his own.

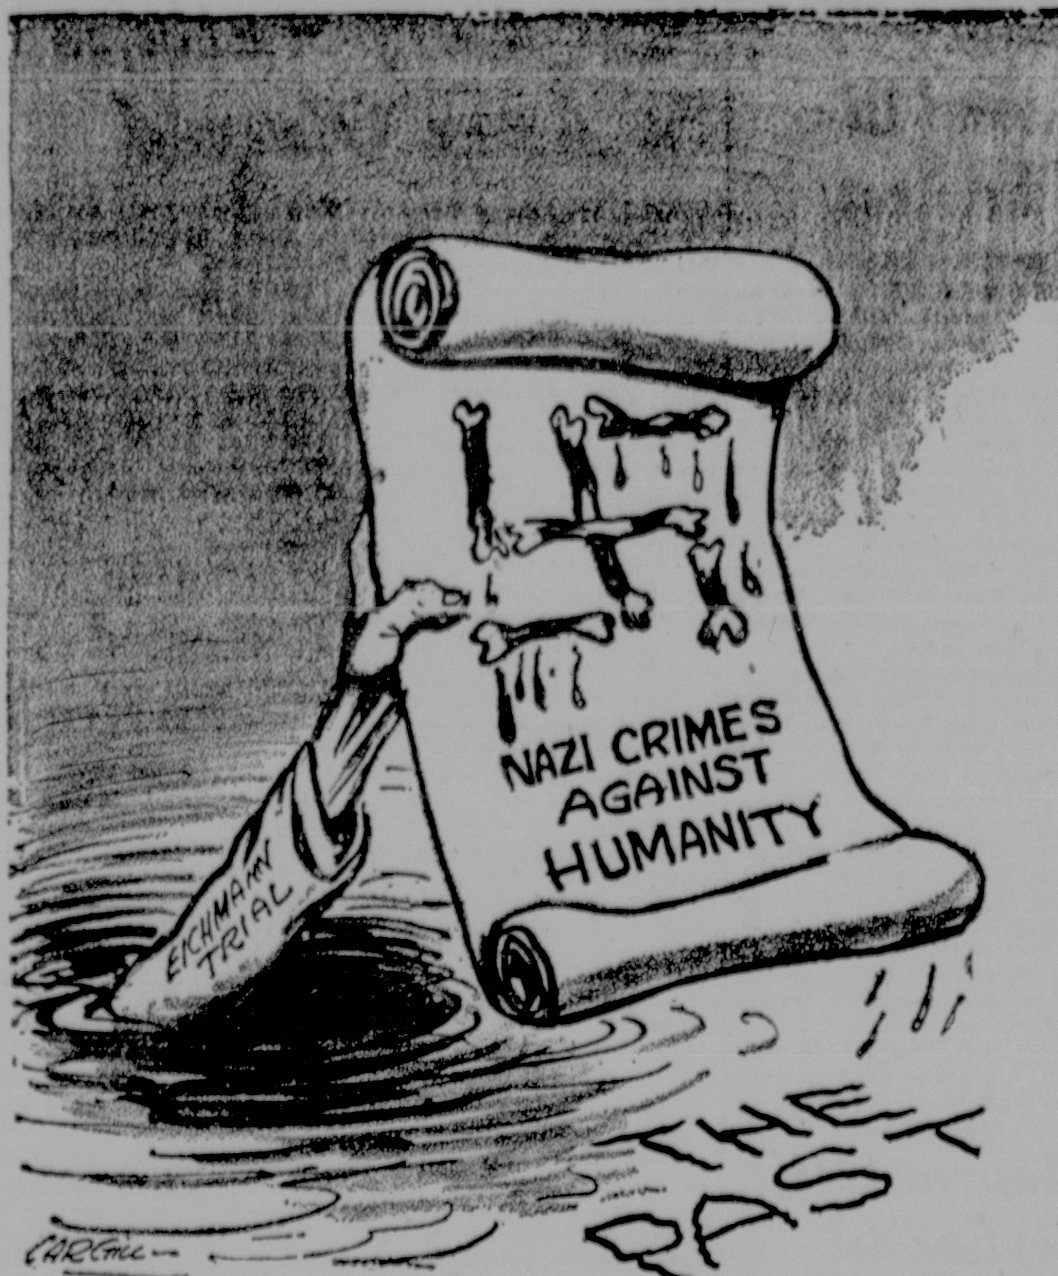

In fact, what the Committee proposes is a static country, one that does not grow and does not change, despite wars and sputniks. The release says:

"... All the hopes of America and our nation's strength must be built on the foundation of unity, faith in each other, and national solidarity."

There is more prospect in a good argument than in pious hand-holding and the shouting of "Glory be!" Perfection was reached when Aaron Burr killed Alexander Hamilton and nothing new needs to be added. This, of course, is not conservatism. It is a static way of life.

I see on the Advisory Council of this organization my friend, Gene Tunney, who is an arguer if ever there was one. He perhaps should be silenced because he and I belong to a club where anyone can smear, malign, mistreat, abuse anyone, so long as it is done with wit and wisdom. The only crime that can be committed there against the Republic is to be a bore. Such are despised because they are authors of indignation.

When a Committee organizes to commit conformity, to suppress opposition, and to uphold dreary consistency, there ought to be a law against felonious assault on the intellect.

The Pennsylvania Story

Strange Laws

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Stranger than fiction are some of the laws that manage to get on Pennsylvania's statute books.

For example, there was that ancient bill that prohibited dueling between public officials (although the attrition rate might have been a good thing in the final analysis!).

And yet at this very moment a similar "strange" piece of legislation is on its way.

It's up to the Senate now to determine its future course — having already passed the House last week.

The legislation in question House Bill 809 — a bill that would prevent dentists in Pennsylvania from advertising.

The measure, according to the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association, is "strongly backed" by the Pennsylvania Dental Association.

On the surface, the reaction might well be — "well, what is wrong with this?"

The question is not one of whether dentists should or should not advertise — it is the manner in going about reaching the desired end via legislation.

To illustrate: The highly professional and highly respected medical profession has decreed via its "Code of Ethics" that physicians shall not advertise, other than announcement notices of change of address, opening of practice, etc.

The critical and big point: in this case it is the medical profession itself that has set up the decree — and which enforces it. It is not a statutory or legislative mandate — making violation thereof a publicly punishable crime.

Therein lies the difference and the crucial and critical point.

Why should the dental profession have the restrictive legislation on the statute books—and not the medical profession?

The issue most certainly is pinpointed in the case of the medical profession where it is a question of "policing within own ranks" as opposed to statutory infringement on individual freedoms.

Should the restrictive advertising legislation go through on the dental front, it unquestionably will be involuntary infringement of individual freedoms via legislation — as opposed to the "voluntary" policy infringement as contained in the "Code of Ethics" adopted by the American Medical Association and adhered to by physicians.

The point was underscored the other day by James M. Driscoll, President of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association when he said:

"We have no quarrel with the Dental Association or its members in deciding among themselves that advertising is not for them. However, we do take exception when they resort to state legislation in an effort to impose their personal opinion by law."

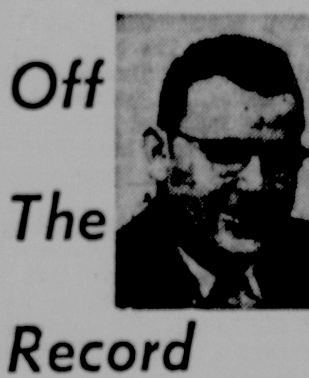

Somewhat paradoxically to the Pennsylvania Dental Association stand outlawing dental advertising — that is, "getting out the word" on the dental front — is this excerpt from the association's March "Service Letter":

"Dentistry in Pennsylvania has accepted a challenge: The meeting head of the problem of doing something about the more than sixty per cent of the public who never receive dental care. The assignment of telling these people about dental health needs is being met through dental health education and public relations."

What the dental profession does within its own professional framework is one thing — when it legislates it becomes the public's business.

Again paradoxically, it would seem the profession would be fighting greater state control over its activities — not asking for more!

House Bill 809 deserves far greater study before it is considered by the Senate.

By Bob Clark

Ladies and gentlemen, tonight we will present the annual Benders awards.

These were the first words offered by that great comedian, Fidel Castro as he was preparing to announce the victors of Benders which allows each winner to go on the town for a three-day spree.

Castro, in his funniest way, asked the assembled fools to be quiet while he read the list of individuals who attained the highest niche in the world's hall of fame.

Castro, unworried about landings in his homeland, announced that Nikita Khrushchev topped the Bender award as the Best Actor of 1960.

The Cuban also revealed that "K" won honors for the best sound effects — the firing of the spaceman and the most dramatic scene — the return of Gargarin from orbit and his welcome in Moscow.

Best Actress honors went to Madame Chiang Kai Shek. Her work in fooling the public since 1933 was considered one of the best achievements by a woman in the last 50 years.

Supporting roles went to two men — Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia and Generalissimo Franco of Spain. The voters felt that no other two men ever jumped so often back and forth over the fence and kept their nations in the middle throughout the history of mankind.

For their "untiring" efforts to keep with a winner, both Tito and Franco shared Best Supporting Actor Awards.

Best Supporting Actress also ended up in a tie between Princess Margaret and Elsa Maxwell. The Princess showed she was a woman and finally married, while Elsa proved she'll always have a job as long as she can give parties.

Castro was quite proud of his early surprises and let it be known that more is in store for the followers of Bender Awards.

While the other winners won't be announced until later, a rumor had it that "Pentagon" topped the Most Complex Department category: The Elchmann Trial for its Not Let Sleeping Dogs Lie theme; and SEATO, NATO for their musical rendition of "War Is Hell."

Naturally, the above is only a mockery of the famed Hollywood Oscar Awards. Oh well, we might as well close with a "V" and say that there'll always be an England.

But what about the rest of the world?

Reports From Congress

Redistricting Plans

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — Petition and referendum, time-honored reform weapons, are being dusted off by groups determined to prevent "gerrymandering" of Congressional Districts in many state legislatures.

Within the past few days, referendum petitions challenging new Congressional districting laws have been launched in Maryland and Arkansas, and a strong threat has been made of such a campaign in California.

In any of the 21 states which have referendum provisions in their state constitutions, a successful referendum petition would have the effect of placing a legislature-passed redistricting law in abeyance through the 1962 elections and giving the state's voters an opportunity to vote "yes" or "no" on the legislature's plan in next year's general election.

If the referendum petitions in Maryland, Arkansas and California are harbingers of things to come, many state legislatures may feel a serious retraining on their previously unchallenged right to Congressional Districts for reasons of political convenience. Such a development would parallel increasing pressures on the courts to step into cases of legislative malapportionment.

But while the referendum petition weapon may aid civic groups like the League of Women Voters in preventing gerrymandering and reducing malapportionment, it is also available to groups or areas anxious to prevent the establishment of new districts less favorable to their particular interests. In states which lose seats, referendum petitions forcing all the Representatives to run at large might make it possible for minority groups or interests to "bullet" their votes and thus achieve a crude form of proportional representation.

Here is a rundown on the referendum petitions already announced in 1961:

Maryland — The Democratic-controlled Maryland General Assembly last month completed action on a redistricting bill which reduced the size of only one of the state's three overpopulated and underrepresented Congressional Districts. The newly-created seat, in Southern Maryland, is in safely Democratic territory and would reportedly be under the control of the Democratic organization in Prince Georges County.

At the same time, the Assembly left untouched two districts, both more than 60 percent over the average Congressional district population, in Western Maryland and north of Baltimore. Democratic Assembly leaders reportedly feared that a new seat in one of these areas might go Republican.

Several chapters of the League of Women Voters recently began a petition campaign to nullify the legislature's redistricting bill and force a referendum on it in 1962. Maryland observers believe the League has an excellent chance of gathering the 10,000 necessary petition signatures. The League hopes to obtain an unfavorable vote in 1962 on the Assembly-passed bill and force the Assembly to enact a fairer bill in 1963.

Arkansas — The Arkansas General Assembly last January passed a new Congressional districting bill reducing the number of districts from six to four in accordance with the 1960 Census apportionment. There was little general criticism of the plan, which created new districts ranging from 11 percent over to 25 percent below the average district population figure.

Representatives of three Southeast-central counties — Arkansas, Lincoln and Jefferson — were highly upset by the plan, however, because they found their area had been attached to the new 1st District (Northeast, Delta country) with which they have few ties and which they feared would dominate them.

The recently launched petition referendum must obtain 25,000 signatures to place the question on the 1962 general election ballot and force all the state's Representatives to run at large in 1962.

California — California's Democratic-controlled Legislature has not yet taken action on a bill to redraw Congressional district lines to allow for the state's eight new Representatives under the 1960 Census. But Republicans want to themselves forced through a gerrymander of districts when they controlled the Legislature in 1951 — are worried that the new bill may put them at too great a disadvantage.

Republican State Vice Chairman Casper W. Weinberger April 4 said that if the Democrats force through a "blindly partisan" redistricting law, the Republicans will organize a referendum petition (262,789 signatures would be required). Weinberger said the Democrats were considering tailoring three new districts in Southern California for the benefit of Democratic legislature members who are planning to run for Congress.

Inside You And Yours

Dear Doctor

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

Dear Doctor: Several years ago my doctor gave me a blood transfusion for anemia. I haven't had any pep since.

Could I have received blood from someone who smokes or drinks?

Mrs. G. G.

Dear Mrs. G.: Blood banks won't accept alcoholic or smoky blood. And remember that borrowed blood is "all used up" within four months.

Perhaps anemia is still robbing you of pep. Have your doctor check you and your blood before you start blaming someone else!

Swollen Legs
Dear Doctor: Although my internal organs check out healthy, I'm still bothered by a tense swollen leg.

What could be causing this?

Mrs. C. L.

Dear Mrs. L.: Perhaps a blood clot in a large leg vein! These clots cause swollen, white legs. This "milk-leg" often develops after an operation or delivery.

Gravity can help drain the swelling if you prop the foot up on several pillows. A little massage can also help milk the swelling out of your milk leg!

Knees, Arms, Hands, Pain
Dear Doctor: Eight years ago I suffered painful shingles on my shoulder. Now my knees, arms and hands pain.

Could shingles still be inside my body?

Mrs. D. L.

Dear Mrs. L.: Shingles doesn't last more than a few weeks, even when the pain lingers for years. The pain covers only the area originally infected by the

Dear Mr. Editor:

The Cabbage or Provence Rose has been grown in gardens in America for many centuries but nobody knows where or when it originated. The best guess is they originated between France and Holland, but more likely in France.

They are probably the most fragrant of all roses and have been grown for ages to manufacture rose water and altar roses, and the petals are also used in jellies.

The name cabbage comes from the fact that each flower resembles a small cabbage head. There are only a few varieties of this rose and only two colors, pink and white.

An expert could identify the different pinks or one who grows and keeps them labeled, but they will always be known as the white or pink Cabbage Rose.

The pink is the most desirable and flowers to be used must be cut before the buds are fully open. The stems are shorter than hybrid teas thus making fine flowers for shallow dishes or vases. They are very fragrant and pleasing in any room in the home.

The white is not as fragrant and does not open as wide as the pink which is more shrubby in growth and possibly not scattered as wide as the pink varieties.

I became interested in this rose many years ago but they could not be grown in the vicinity where I lived so I decided to visit some of the old farms and gardens on the back roads in Orange County, N.Y., that were owned by old families who have handed them down from father to son.

At least it might be possible to obtain some information if not the plants themselves. After much inquiry and search I not only got information but three varieties that I still have today.

About Town

—By Gene Brown

If "The Untouchables" loses backers because it infringes on racial sensitivities, will it become known as "The Un-sponsorable?"

At a cocktail party the other night I heard a "Slipped Disk" strike up an animated conversation with a "High Cholesterol" while a tanned Metracelite kibitzed brilliantly about the coming Hypochondria. I tried to swing the word-age to our plight with moles in the pachysandra but found that these amateur doctors are interested only in alimentary subjects.

It is getting so that you don't want to look out of the window in the morning when you awake, ... It's always January in June.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The trouble with psychology is that it works—even when you know it is being done on you. Bill Deering's unvarying greeting used to be "Well, you look bright and gay." Maybe you'd just had a tooth pulled, a fight with your husband, and were still limping from a stubbed toe but automatically your back would straighten and your spirits rise.

Even though you knew he didn't mean it and he knew you knew he didn't. There's no such doubt in your mind, though, when somebody comes up and says solitiously: "My, you look tired." Maybe you are tired but not half so tired as you feel a moment later as your muscles sag, the lines deepen and your eyes pull back in your head.

So on a day when everybody's feeling aches and is dispirited and doubtful that the sun will ever shine, it would be a good idea to bring out some of the compliments you've been saving up for people. The trouble is it's hard to think of anything nice about anybody.

Fortunately, I didn't have to think; just look and listen at the Children's Aid Society: the way one end of the room glowed from the flowers on the hats of Trudy Hellmann and Henri Metzgar; the spontaneous laughter that bubbled up as Miss Elizabeth Martin injected her own dry humor in her tales of emergencies she had met with children before CAS.

Then there were the enchanting covers on the annual reports, drawn and colored by hand by Mrs. Charles Jones. And the crisp, yet informal way Margaret Wells can conduct a business meeting. The general feeling of good will, and a whole lot of good deeds in many fields all gathered in one room.

I didn't start drooping again until the first person I met outside said "My, you look tired—" and so on infinitum.

Mrs. Samet President Of E. S. Elementary PTA

Barbara Samet was elected and installed as president of the East Stroudsburg Elementary Parent-Teachers Assn. at the meeting this week in the J. M. Hill School with Irving Sommer presiding.

Other officers elected included: Dr. James Fahl, first vice president; Margaret Delk, second vice president; Lillian Mosier, third vice president; Joan Detrick, corresponding secretary; Nancy Rine, recording secretary, and John Detrick, treasurer.

John Lambert, Kathleen Snyder and Betty Martin composed the nominating committee. Nancy Rine reported a profit of $92.60 from the recent bake sale. Lambert announced that the library was now open for the fifth and sixth grades but that more books were still needed.

Three new committees will be added next year: A school board committee; legislative committee, and special events chairman.

Mrs. Samet presented the program, a film by the American Medical Assn.: "Journey in Health." With this as a background, a panel which included Dr. Richard Krueger, Mrs. Estelle Fleming and Miss Charlotte Shupp discussed the school's health program.

Yearly dental examinations for decayed, missing or filled teeth in children in grades 1, 3 and 7 are held each year, Dr. Krueger explained. Records from the examination are sent to the state where needed programs are initiated.

For instance this year, a fluoride program was stated for second graders since the borough could not afford fluoridization facilities.

Miss Shupp, school nurse, explained that the Child Health Committee of the county assist in dental correction where the parents are unable to provide it. When children become sick in school, the parents are notified. Miss Shupp explained, but that no medication can be given without a doctor's orders.

Health examinations are given in the kindergarten, sixth and 11th grades.

She explained that quarantine have been lifted because new medications clear up the diseases faster and children are not out of school as long as they used to be.

Mrs. Fleming of the Tuberculosis Society, explained the TB testing in grades 1 and 7 now being held. When a positive reaction is noted, showing contact with tuberculosis, both the parents and child should have chest X-rays and other children in the family should be given TB tests, she advised.

Doctors of the county give their services without cost in administering the tests, the tuberculosis comes from the state and the local TB society does the clerical work, she explained.

Anniversary Celebrated By Hauses

Newfoundland — "A Swiss cheese sandwich and a cup of coffee" Those were the words that led to the celebration of a 55th wedding anniversary this week in Newfoundland.

It was in November, 1906, that William Hause leaned across the counter in the old Williams Restaurant on Lackawanna Avenue, Scranton, and gave his order to the pretty little waitress whose name was Frieda Lewis. And on April 11, 1961, they exchanged wedding vows at 344 North Garfield Avenue, Scranton, the bride's home. The Rev. Mr. Howells officiated.

Frieda Lewis was born in Scranton in 1888, daughter of the late John H. and Anna E. Lewis. William Hause was born in East Nantmeal, in 1881, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Webster Hause.

The couple lived for several years in Scranton, moving to Bethlehem during World War I when "Bill" worked as an electrician at Bethlehem Steel. They came to Newfoundland in 1922, and became active members of the Moravian Church, its Adult Bible Class and Sunday School.

Both Mr. Hause, now a fire warden, and Mrs. Hause, a graduate practical nurse, are well-known in this community for service to others. They are the parents of one daughter, Marie.

Mrs. Hause is a member of the Welsh Society of Scranton. Her grandfather, who was killed in the Civil War, carried mail on horseback between Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

The local couple celebrated their wedding anniversary as dinner guests of their niece and her husband, Ruth and Delmar Davies, Scranton.

To millions of people who watch television, Loretta Young is a fashionably dressed, very beautiful woman who twirls through a door once a week, welcomes listeners into her living room, and closes her half hour program with a tilt of her head and a rather too pert, "See you next week?" This finale of hers has always irritated me beyond description, but her plays are, from my feminine point of view, enjoyable, and her appearance is enough to break the heart of an average woman.

It was not until I read Miss Young's book, "The Things I Had to Learn" that I began appreciating her as an individual, however. Ghosted by Helen Ferguson, this book, published by Bobbs-Merrill, portrays Loretta Young as a person just as near perfect as a person can be. It also shows the struggle she has become so... bouts with such down to earth enemies as jealousy, over-confidence, envy, and their like... and, in her triumph over them, she becomes a challenge to us all.

Priced at 3.95, this book might do anyone a world of good. It would be very encouraging for a teen ager, with braces on her teeth and a skinny frame, to know that as a starlet Loretta Young also had braces on her teeth, and at one point, her figure had to be padded. It is a bit startling to read that this glamorous woman is afraid of pain. Somehow Miss Young seems so utterly above all things earthly and prosaic, one would guess the very word might be alien to her. But it isn't. At one period of her life she was seriously and very painfully ill for many months. Her long idleness taught her such lessons as the great comfort of prayer, the healing warmth of friendship both close at hand and proffered from afar; the all-encompassing Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

Loretta Young's father deserted his family when she was only a few months old. Fortunately, her mother remained. She was a patient, kindly woman with wisdom that closed her heart to bitterness, and offered a keen insight into her problems and those of her growing family. She could be tolerant and slightly humorous when Loretta continuously harped about a young schoolmate who irked her. Pointing out that the dislike was based upon jealousy, Mrs. Young finally advised Loretta to learn to say something nice about the girl. It would vary the conversation, Mrs. Young suggested, which would be very nice since Loretta's conversations were only upon this one subject.

Can you imagine Loretta Young ever having envied anyone? Hard to believe... but she did envy those whom she considered lovelier than she, and she went through a period of despair when it seemed Janet Gaynor was getting more attention from the studios than she. It was some time before she realized that others could play, quite as competently as she, the meaty parts she felt were her due. But on the heels of this new humility came further realization of her own blessings, and awe at the way heaven opened doors for her when she ceased dictating to God and bent to His judgment.

Through the years her lessons were many. From Colleen Moore she learned that beauty is spiritual... that love is returned in an amazing multiplication of the amount expended. She learned to budget her emotions with "no allowance for wasting time and emotion on any poison-dripping negative attitude." She learned that a man must sometimes sacrifice everything he has for his principles, with no assurance he will ever be understood. And she discovered that good habits, good outlook, and good humor are equally as important as good manners, good grooming and good sense.

You will enjoy this book, I am sure. In the main, the things Loretta Young had to learn are the things you and I must learn, and the lessons we would like to teach our children.

White Roof Helps Keep You Cool

INTERIOR temperatures can be reduced by as much as 20 degrees by painting your roof white, according to studies made by the National Paint, Varnish & Lacquer Association. This means lower electric bills because air conditioners will have less work to do and if you do not have an air conditioner, upstairs rooms will be more comfortable.

Model houses with roofs of black asphalt shingles were used for the test in Washington's notoriously brutal climate. One roof was painted white, the other left untouched. Other tests showed that natural color aluminum paint also brought reductions of a lesser amount in interior temperatures. Light pastel aluminum paints helped to a lesser degree.

Not every kind of white paint is suitable for painting a roof, however. In the first place do not use a so-called self-cleaning, or chalking paint, because as this wears away (as it is supposed to do), the chalk may stain the sides of the house.

Roofs built of materials containing asphalt cannot be painted with solvent-thinned paints, because the solvent will dissolve the asphalt and cause ugly bleeding. So, for asphalt-felt, asphalt shingle and similar roofs, use an exterior white latex paint.

Exterior latexes can also be used on asbestos-cement shingles. Other paints suitable for this material are so-called swimming pool paints and paints designed especially for masonry.

Galvanized metal roofs should first be primed with zinc dust-zinc oxide paint, or other primer meant for this metal. The topcoat can be any non-chalking exterior paint.

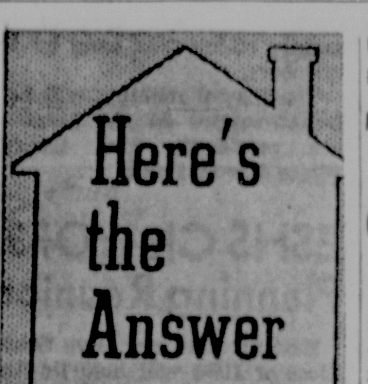

Tin-coated roofs should first be primed with an anti-corrosive primer, and then be given the desired topcoat.

Modern shingles can be painted with any non-chalking exterior paint. To prevent old shingle stain, from bleeding through, a coat of exterior aluminum paint is advised as a primer.

Remember that the life of paint on horizontal or nearly horizontal surfaces is shorter than on vertical surfaces. Two coats will last longer and do a better hiding job. To save your back, apply the paint with a long-handled roller or a spray.

Be sure, however, that you use only quality paint. Only quality paint has lasting hiding power, retains its color brilliance, and is wear and weather resistant.

To be sure that you are getting a quality product, ask a friend or neighbor who has had a satisfactory paint job which brand he used or consult your established, reputable paint dealer.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: I have a considerable amount of sanding to do and plan on renting a portable electric sander. The store in my neighborhood which rents sanders has two types—the orbital and the belt. Which kind should I get?

ANSWER: It depends on the type of sanding you are going to do. You mention "a considerable amount of sanding." If that means you will be doing heavy-duty sanding (taking off a lot of wood), by all means choose the belt sander. If it means you will be doing light-duty sanding on many pieces of wood, then the orbital sander is probably your best bet. Actually, either sander will handle heavy-duty or light-duty work, depending on the coarseness of the abrasive paper that is used. But the belt sander generally will take off surface irregularities faster; the orbital has a slower cutting action and is ideal for getting exceptionally smooth finished. If, for instance, you are using a sander to remove paint, you want a belt sander with an open grit abrasive. If you are sanding a veneered surface, you want an orbital sander. In either case, it is important that the abrasive paper be stretched tightly across the pad. With a belt sander, it is also necessary to check the alignment of the abrasive every once in a while to be sure the paper is not rubbing against the frame. All belt sanders have some kind of screw arrangement on the side to keep the abrasive running in a straight line. Turning this screw one way or the other will set the paper back on its proper line.

Science Frees Today's Cook Of Defrosting

FROST never forms in the freezer or fresh-food storage compartments of today's big freezers.

"This," says Helen Hoff, New York home economist, "frees housewives from the tedious, messy and time-consuming chore of manual defrosting."

"Now homemakers can use all of the space available in their freezer compartments," Miss Hoff adds. Frost can't build up to cut down on storage area.

Step-End Table

PERMANENT retirement because of age, or temporary, because of unemployment is a problem we all face sometime in every business of life. While most people take it in their stride, others go to pieces in a hurry.

Since the wheel of fortune seems to help those who never seem to need help, anyone who keeps busy when "retired," always seems luckier and attracts additional work. They discover and hold the real key to happiness.

Those who hesitate to try doing something they've never done before, are "sane," but not buried. As insurance against the day when you might retire, or for any period when you have time, learn to work with your hands. Making the table illustrated can help open the door to a new, happier and more productive life.

The pattern offered assumes you have never built a table before and provides full size outlines, plus complete step-by-step directions.

This end table is one of over 300 projects anyone can build from a pattern. By following the method of construction, anyone can build furniture, toys, boats, even garages, cabins and houses.

So don't wait until you retire to start planning your retirement. Start living a fuller life by doing more. Anyone who can read, can make anything from lumber if they follow these easy to use, easy to build patterns.

This end table measures 22½ inches high, 30 inches wide and 20 inches deep. It is an ideal project to start with.

Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order for Step-End Table.

freezer packages are always identifiable and never stick together."

Thick formations of ice on the interior surfaces of old-fashioned units create a sort of insulating effect that cuts down on freezer efficiency. With automatic defrosting, there's never any ice build-up and the freezer works at top efficiency night and day.

Tournament Mathematics Problems

THE FOLLOWING is a problem taken from the ninth grade General Mathematics section of a previous Monroe County Mathematics Tournament:

A regular pentagon is circumscribed by a circle, with radii drawn from the center of the circle to the vertices of the pentagon forming central angles. How many degrees are there in one of these central angles?

Solution to Problem No. 3
The answer to yesterday's problem is 36 sq. ft. Since the slant height of a pyramid is the shortest distance from the edge of the base to the top (tip) of the pyramid you have four equal triangles with bases of 3 feet and altitudes of 6 feet. The area of one of these triangles is one-half times the base times the altitude. Four such triangles would be four times the area of one triangle. In formula we have — Area of triangle equals (one-half) times (base) times (height).
*The slant height of the pyramid is the altitude of the triangle.

The following is a Plane Geometry problem of a previous Monroe County Mathematics Tournament: The locus of points that are equidistant from two given parallel lines and also equidistant from two given points (these two points determine a line which is not perpendicular to the two given parallel lines) is (a) one line, (b) two lines, (c) one point, or (d) two points.

Solution to Problem No. 4
72 degrees is the answer to problem no. 4. Since a regular pentagon has five equal sides there will be five equal central angles, each of which will be one-fifth of 360 degrees.

Pirates Open Home Stand By Beating Chicago 5-3

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates opened their home season Tuesday by scoring two runs in the seventh inning to break a tie and give them a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Despite 42-degree weather, a crowd of 30,781 turned out at Forbes Field.

First baseman Dick Stuart, who had given the Pirates a one-run lead with a booming triple in the fifth inning, drove in what proved to be the winning run with a single in the seventh.

Mizzell Gets Helped
Southpaw Vinegar Bend Mizell, who usually has little trouble with the Cubs, received credit for the victory although the Pirates' ace relief pitcher, Roy Face, hurled the final two innings. It was Mizell's first start of the young season.

Starter Dick Ellsworth of the Cubs was removed for a pinch hitter and the defeat was charged to Mel Wright who gave up both Pirate runs in the seventh.

Varsity 'S' Meets
The Varsity "S" Club meets Thursday at 7:30 at the Stroudsburg Fire House. All special project returns must be turned in then.

After retiring one man, Wright gave up singles to Dick Groat and Bob Clemente. Stuart dropped a looping single into short right and Groat scored, Clemente, going to third. A moment later Clemente scored on a squeeze bunt laid down by Bill Mazeroski.

The Pirates got to Ellsworth for two runs in the first inning on three singles and a throwing error by catcher Dick Bertell.

Mizzell, who won six of seven decisions over the Cubs last season, retired the first nine men in order.

But in the fourth the Cubs put together four hits and a balk by Mizell to score twice.

Two of the hits were doubles—by Don Zimmer and Ron Santo. With Cubs on second and third with one out, Mizell then settled down to strike out Andre Rodgers and retire Al Heist on an outfield fly.

Twins Face Big Welcome In Minnesota
ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) The Minnesota Twins, flashing early season power in the American League, came home Thursday to a royal welcome.

If the fans are making a premature down payment on hero worship you can hardly blame them.

The Twins have been in sole possession of first place in the league since winning three out of four from Baltimore last weekend. Tuesday, they extended their mark to 5-1 with a 3-2 victory over Boston. They play the Red Sox in the second game of the series Wednesday.

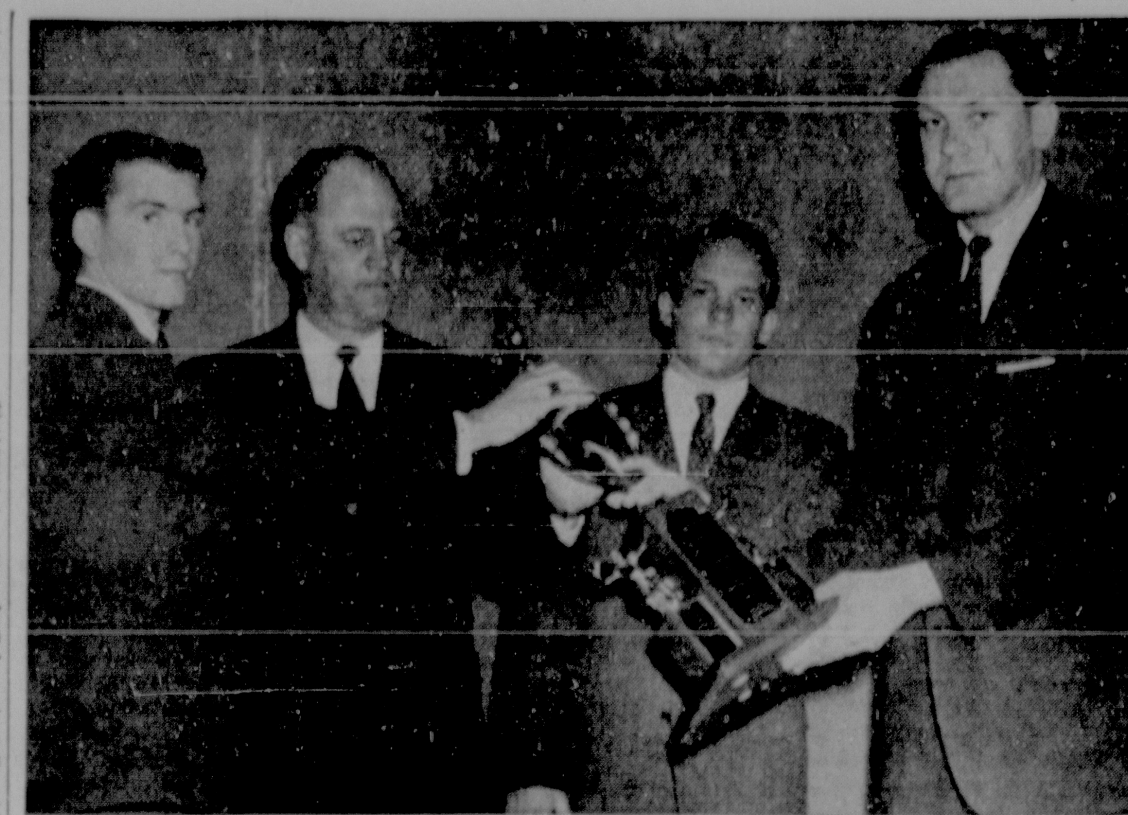

The former Washington Senators, transplanted by president Cal Griffith last October, will fly in Wednesday night for their first home game Friday against the new Washington club.

No Ceremonies
No elaborate ceremonies are planned at Wald-Chamberlain Field, but the cities, usually bitter rivals in sports and everything else, will link arms in new-found friendship to toast the team Thursday.

St. Paul gets the first chance with a breakfast at a downtown hotel and a musical salute to the police band. Then the 36-car motorcade, with officials and players waving from convertibles, will wind through city streets and across the Mississippi River to Minneapolis.

Among those in the party will be American League President Joe Cronin, Gov. Elmer L. Andersen, Manager Cookie Lavagetto and Griffith.

Late Comers
League Chairman William Harbridge will be on hand later in the day and Baseball Commis-

Hit By Cards' Gibson

Snider Lost For Month With Fractured Elbow

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Veteran slugger Duke Snider Tuesday was declared out of action for at least a month with a bone fracture in the right elbow, dealing the already slow starting Los Angeles Dodgers a jolt.

Vice President E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi wired Commissioner Ford Frick, to ask that Duke be placed on the disabled list for 30 days.

The 34-year-old Snider was hit by a Bob Gibson pitch as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Dodgers

9-5 Monday night.

The accident occurred in the fifth inning. On his previous trip to the plate, Snider had sliced a home run over the left field screen. It was No. 370 in the Duke's career and placed him alone in seventh spot in the all-time major league home run derby. He had been tied with Ralph Kiner.

Placed In Cast
Dr. Robert Kerlan, the club physician, said the right radius bone at the elbow was fractured.

The arm will be in a cast for about three weeks.

The injury came as a distinct blow to Snider, who had hoped for a great if not his last year with the Dodgers. The club was preseason favorite for the National League pennant.

Snider has been plagued with a bad knee for the past few years. But it had not bothered him this spring and he checked into spring training camp in what many Dodger old-timers thought was his best condition since 1948.

Manager Walter Alston, also keenly disappointed at the break, had used Snider regularly in this new season. The Duke was hitting .285 in 21 appearances at the plate, and batted in six runs.

Snider is not the only casualty. Second baseman Charlie Neal aggravated a knee injury and is lost to the lineup, at least temporarily.

Brown Decisions Charnley To Keep Lightweight Title In Bloody London Fight

LONDON (AP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown of Baton Rouge, La., cut Dave Charnley's nose in the fifth round and hammered out a decision over the blood-smeared Briton in a 15-round title fight Tuesday night.

It was Brown's second straight title victory over the 25-year-old Londoner and his 10th defense of the 135-pound division crown. The 35-year-old American stopped Charnley on a cut over the right eye in six rounds at Houston, Texas, 16 months ago.

There were no knockdowns although both fell to the canvas after a collision in the first round.

Streaming Blood
The long-armed American repeatedly smashed Charnley's gashed nose with fast rights and snapping left jabs. By the 12th round Charnley was bruised about the eyes, streaming blood from the nose cut and trying desperately for a long shot knock-out. But Brown calmly pecked away with both hands and piled up points.

A sellout crowd of 18,000 in Earls Court Stadium paid about $112,000 for London's first title bout since light heavyweight champion Archie Moore knocked out Yolande Pompey in the tenth round. Brown earned about $50,000 and Charnley about $28,000. Brown weighed 134 pounds, Charnley 134½.

It was the first defeat for Charnley, British and European lightweight champion, since he was stopped by Brown. He had won five straight. His record is 37-7-1. Brown's victory made his record 83-38-10. Until Brown surpassed it, the great Benny Leonard held the record for lightweight title defenses, eight.

Dear Abby

Once Burnt, Twice Shy

Dear Abby: Your answer to the wife of the man who "liked to look" amazed me. And you call yourself an expert! What do you mean, "Just because a man is on a diet doesn't mean he can't look at the menu?"

My husband's hobby was "looking at menus." (He would order occasionally, too.) I finally had to call in a lawyer to get him back on his regular diet. Anyone who says "looking is harmless" doesn't know the half of it.

UGHT TO KNOW

Dear Ought: A man can look at a woman in TWO ways. One is with "lust" — which is wrong. The other is with "admiration." When God created beauty in nature he endowed man with the intelligence to appreciate it. A beautiful woman (unlike the prairie flower) was not "born to blush unseen and waste her fragrance on the desert air."

Dear Abby: My problem is that my husband can wait but not jitterbug, and I just love to jitterbug. Last Saturday night when we were out, my girl friend asked me to jitter with her. My husband said NO, I couldn't. I was so mad I felt like getting up and dancing with her anyway, but I didn't.

When we got home I asked my husband why he didn't let me dance with her and he said it was not ladylike for a girl to dance with another girl in public. I say he is wrong, and he says he is right. We have this problem every time we go out. Please put your answer in the paper before next Saturday night because it will save another argument.

LOVES TO JITTER

Dear Loves: Your husband is right. Girls dance with other girls only when there are no men to dance with. Either teach him to jitter or slow down to a waltz.

Dear Abby: My husband and I received a 50th wedding anniversary invitation for a six o'clock dinner and dance. I was so pleased with the invitation until I read in the lower left-hand corner of the card: $6.00 a

Rich Suspect Spent Money Lavishly

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) Five witnesses testified Tuesday that John Berkery, one of the two men on trial for the John B. Rich burglary, spent money lavishly from the summer of 1959 until the next spring.

Always he paid the bills in cash, and on certain occasions, according to some of the testimony, he bought and paid for luxuries under assumed names. Testimony came from a real estate man, a drapery salesman and his boss, a lamp clerk and a dealer in marine supplies.

The Rich burglary was committed in August, 1959, while the owner of the house, a coal mine operator, was vacationing in Europe. The loot has ranged, on a descending scale, from nearly a half-million dollars, by police account, to a little over $20,000, which is Rich's own reckoning.

One convicted, Robert Poulson, 26, of Philadelphia, was convicted last month. He is appealing the verdict. Berkery is on trial with Ralph Staino Jr., 28, Philadelphia, club majordomo. His employer, Lillian Reis, 32, will be tried at the end of this case. The state says she was the chief conspirator, acting on a tip from Clyde Miller, 33, deemed too ill to stand trial for the time being. At the outset of Tuesday's proceedings, the judge ruled that Poulson's alleged confession to Philadelphia and state police exhibit only as it applies to Staino.

Wednesday's court session will begin at 10:30 a.m., a half hour later than usual, this to accommodate one of the defense lawyers, who was called to Harrisburg.

On the second session, the program will be in charge of Mayberr Crane, Mt. Prospect Grange; Mary Rowe, of Raymondskill and Gertrude Hendershot, of Greeley Grange.

The theme of these programs will be: "Partners in Community Development."

Fifth Degrees
The fifth degree was given to candidates by the direction of past deputy master Andrew Teachman. Officers of the degree were: Eugene Wieser, master; Lester Hendershot, overseer; Sylvia Loux, lecturer; Elizabeth Lyon, chaplain; Mabel Bloker, steward; Andrew Teachman, assistant steward; Susan Moreaux, secretary; Abe Hindin, treasurer; Hazel DeGarmo, emblem bearer; Floyd Braud, gatekeeper; Robert Crane, sealer; Mayberr Crane, Pomona; Anna Braud, Ceres; Kathryn Hindin, Flora; Also Elsie Borgenhagen, soloist; Percy M. Polley, pianist; Robert Crane, curtain; Julia Mathews, Catherine Powers, Elsie Borgenhagen and Christine Teachman, court ladies.

Marching candidates were: Gertrude Hendershot, Harold Dennis, Evelyn and Richard Siedorf, Kathryn Wieser and Fred Mathews.

Liquor License Is Suspended

Rules Mayor Lacks Power Of 'Authority'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The State Supreme Court held Tuesday that the mayor of a third class city "lacks power to remove from office at his pleasure" members of an urban redevelopment authority.

The 5-2 decision actually reversed the original ruling of the high tribunal—a 4-3 opinion last January—which held the mayor of Johnston had the right "at his pleasure" to remove members of the authority.

Mayor George R. Walter had removed James Hanson, George Hoover and Herbert Beagle on Feb. 16, 1960. The Cambria County Common Pleas Court upheld that dismissal, and so did the Supreme Court for about three days.

Then, without notice or explanation, it withdrew its affirming opinion. Tuesday's brief "per curiam"—an unsigned decision—followed.

It held specifically that the Supreme Court's decisions holding that a governor could not remove members of appointed agencies, such as the labor relations board or the turnpike commission, also bound the mayor of a third class city.

The Daily Investor

Major Growth Factor

By William A. Doyle
Q. I am puzzled about situations in which one company owns most of the stock of another company — in regards to the market prices of the two stocks. For example, General Tire & Rubber Co. owns about 85 percent of the common stock of Aerojet-General Corp. That's almost share for share.

Yet, Aerojet common stock has a higher market price than General Tire common stock. How do you explain this?

A. There are a number of things you must consider in a situation such as this. In the first place, each share of General Tire stock represents a good deal less Aerojet stock than you indicate.

Aerojet has 4,581,501 shares of common stock outstanding. At last count, General Tire owned 3,766,672 of Aerojet common shares. The latest figures show that General Tire had 5,336,791 shares of common stock outstanding.

This might give you the idea that each share of General Tire common stock represents ownership of roughly 37-33rds of a share of Aerojet. General Tire has five different issues of preferred stock and a fairly large number of warrants outstanding. This reduces the fraction.

Yes, General Tire does have other successful operations. However, Aerojet (the nation's largest developer and producer of rocket motors, components and propellants) is generally considered to be the major growth factor in the whole situation. Growth stocks command high prices these days.

And, because General Tire owns so much of Aerojet's stock, there is a limited amount of Aerojet stock available in the open market. A big demand for a stock in relatively short supply usually sends the price up.

Q. Some time last year, I saw a vague reference in the newspaper that Campbell Soup Co. had declared a stock dividend. Looking through the stock tables in the papers the other day, I see a symbol alongside the Campbell Soup listing, indicating that a stock dividend was paid last year. Why didn't I get my stock dividend?

A. Because Campbell Soup did an announcement that the cash dividend had been increased. Until the latest dividend hike, the cash dividend rate on this stock was 45 cents every three months. The "quarterly" dividend was increased to 50 cents, effective with the payment made Oct. 31.

The symbol you saw printed alongside the Campbell Soup listing, indicating that a stock dividend was paid, must have been a typographical error. Please don't be too unhappy with the newspaper about this. We print millions and millions of words and numbers. Some "typos" are bound to slip through.

Q. Do you consider it necessary for me to have my legal adviser present when I buy shares of a mutual fund?

A. No. If you read the prospectus covering the offering of the mutual fund shares, you'll know what the fund is all about. But, by all means, read the prospectus until you understand it.

General Relieved Of His Command

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker has been relieved of his division command in Germany pending a "complete and impartial" investigation of statements that he exposed his troops to a propaganda barrage about the John Birch Society.

The Army announced yesterday that Secretary Elvis J. Stahr had ordered Walker, who commanded the 24th Infantry Division, shifted immediately to U. S. Army in Europe headquarters at Heidelberg, Germany, pending the outcome of the inquiry.

Several members of Congress demanded an investigation last week after a privately owned servicemen's newspaper, Overseas Weekly, reported that an information program set up by Walker was distributing material about the philosophy of the controversial John Birch Society.

Dr. Finch, Carole Start Life Terms

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge sentenced Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his sweetheart, Carole Tregoff, yesterday to life imprisonment for murdering Finch's beautiful wife.

"The proof against the defendants seems to me overwhelming," Superior Judge David Coleman said.

Their defense he called "a shoddy and crudely woven fabric of deceit."

The handsome couple were composed. The jury that convicted them last month also set the penalty. It could have ordered death. Before the hearing they chatted in undertones, sometimes smiling without enthusiasm. When it ended they smiled wanly at each other before going back to jail separately.

The once-rich West Covina surgeon, 43, and Miss Tregoff, 24, a divorcee who was his employee, then his lover, were convicted in their third trial of conspiracy and murder in the July 18, 1959, shooting of Barbara Jean Finch, 36. The alleged motive: To avoid a costly divorce settlement. The defendants called the shooting accidental during a fight for a pistol. Juries in two earlier trials deadlocked.

The judge denied motions for a new trial. Both will appeal.
